Tranquil Transitions
Each year, 1 in 4 adults age 65+ takes a fall. Falls are the leading cause of both fatal and non-fatal injuries for older Americans. 20-30% of people who fall have an injury that can reduce mobility and may threaten independence. More patients in the U.S. go to the emergency room after falling than from any other mishap. Falls are costly—in dollars and quality of life.

As we get into the winter season, we all need to be especially mindful of the risk of falling. Falls can happen anywhere; the most common are everyday places - shower stalls, supermarket aisles, stairs. Know the signs that indicate you may be at a higher fall risk:

- Lower body weakness
- Shuffling gait
- Holding onto furniture to prevent falling
- Dizziness when standing up
- Decreased coordination
- Decreased ability to walk up steps
- Need for mobility assistance (walker, cane, wheelchair)
- Failure to use prescription glasses or mobility assistance
- Increase in confusion
- Frequent bathroom trips, especially at night

Be aware of environmental risk factors such as poor lighting, throw rugs, pets, and other tripping hazards, and do what you can to make improvements. Also: make sure your medications aren’t making you dizzy; take your time; make sure you can see where you’re stepping; and remember to take a minute before you stand up after lying down.

Winter weather increases risk, thanks to ice and snow. Often it’s best to stay inside until the sun and Snow Melt do their job. Remember, even if your walkway is clear, your destination may not be. Be especially wary of black ice, which looks wet but is slick, and think twice before clambering over snow piles. Make sure you have your emergency alert or cell phone with you, even if just for a short walk to pick up the paper.

The National Council on Aging recommends these steps toward fall prevention:

- Enroll in a good balance and exercise program (at PSRC!);
- Ask your health care provider for a fall risk assessment;
- Regularly review your medications with your doctor or pharmacist;
- Have your vision and hearing checked annually and update your eyeglasses;
- Keep your home safe.

Talk to family members to get their help taking simple steps to stay
Falling often causes a fear of falling, which can lead to abnormal walking, which actually increases risk. Recently, much of the focus for fall prevention has been on balance and strength training. Taking the view that falls are an inevitability to be prepared for, people can learn how to fall to minimize injury.

Physical therapists and trainers may be able to help you learn and practice “safe landing responses” which include protecting your head, and learning how to roll onto the fleshy side parts of the body rather than straight forward or back, which can result in breaking a hand, wrist, arm or hip.

Consulting a professional, and implementing these recommendations can help you keep your life fall-free.

Knit Wits’ mission is to knit for those in need. Their current knitting projects are: lap blankets for disabled Veterans, infant caps for newborn babies in the hospital, and hats/scarves, mittens and sweaters for local homeless and needy families. There is a special outreach with a national organization called Project Linus that provides blankets to children with serious illnesses. Our knitters make small squares that are assembled into blankets, afghans and shawls to be donated.

Donations of yarn are needed so that our group can continue these wonderful projects! Yarn must be acrylic, cotton or washable – no wool please. Donations can be dropped off at either the Suzanne Patterson Building or brought directly to Spruce Circle. Knit Wits meets on Tuesdays at 1:00 p.m. at Spruce Circle. We welcome newcomers! For additional information please call Sharon Hurley 609.252.2362 or email shurley@princetonsenior.org.

The Desktop, Downloads, and Recycle Folders

But First...

Some folks ask if having too many files will slow down their computer. The answer is no—IF you leave a small amount of free space (a few percent) for Windows or MacOS to use for themselves. New PC’s come with voluminous hard disks, so the issue isn’t so much about running out of space; it’s about being able to quickly find what you want. That said, if your disk is maxed out, you’ll see a warning that you’re not going do anything else until you clean out the junk.

The Desktop Folder

The desktop—the display that’s on your screen with a bunch of icons (unless you’re extremely neat)—is unique because the files and folders you keep there are always visible. The only things I keep on my desktop are those I’m working on—like

Files you download from the Internet (this includes software you download from websites and mail attachments you read from a browser), go into your Downloads folder. If you install the latest Firefox browser, for example, you’ll find the installation file in your Downloads folder. After installing the program, you should delete the file. (You can always download it again.) Some of these files are hundreds of megabytes (i.e., huge). Think of it as a temporary holding area.

Folders et al.

Similarly, when you use a browser to view your mail and need to save an attachment, you’ll download it first. Then open your Downloads folder and either move (not just copy) the attachment to a documents folder (see last month’s article), or delete it. (Again, for space reasons.)

I don’t keep more than one month’s stuff in my Downloads folder.

The Recycle Bin (Trash)

Anything you “delete” goes into the Recycle Bin—it’s right there on your Windows desktop or Mac dock. I suggest emptying it every month.

You can set up a Windows task to do that (we can help); the Mac has a built-in Finder option to do this.

Next Month—Other Odds and Ends, and E-mail You Can’t Part With

Ironically, I’m out of space in this Newsletter. Next month, we’ll deal with hidden folders that accumulate debris, and E-mail you (think) you need to keep (forever). Then I’ll write an article about removing programs you no longer use.

In the meantime, if you need help cleaning up your Desktop, are fearful of deleting a download, or can’t part with trash, come see us on Tuesdays from 1:00 to 4:00 p.m., Wednesdays from 1:30 to 4:00 p.m. or Fridays from 10:00 a.m. to 12 noon.
Conquering the Winter Blues

Wintertime can be difficult for many people. There are several factors that could responsible for “the Blues”. Fortunately, with a bit of attention, most of these glum-making culprits have antidotes, leading to positive effects.

The problem: Darkness. Winter days are short, and can often be overcast, making them feel even shorter. When the temperature drops, it’s less appealing to continue doing things outdoors, and subsequently we can feel trapped.

The fix: Get some natural light! Even a few minutes standing on a porch or by a window several times a day, turning on extra lights, or even using a “Bright Light Box” can have positive effects. Seasonal Affective Disorder (SAD – an example of onomatopoeia if ever there was one) is a real medical condition and can be very debilitating. If you’ve noticed you suffer real depression as winter approaches and sets in, seek medical treatment.

The problem: Lack of exercise. We all know we need to keep our bodies moving in some form, but at this time of year the trip to the gym doesn’t feel very compelling. And, if it’s also too cold to take a walk, we can become too sedentary and tend to snack more, leading to unwanted weight gain and inertia.

The fix: Try a new indoor home exercise routine. Set an alarm for some time(s) each day to get your body moving - treat this with the same importance as you would treat taking a class at the gym. Walking inside and stretching regularly are important for getting the endorphins flowing! If walking isn’t possible, moving your limbs and stretching your neck are still possible while you’re in a chair.

Another fix: Consider Yoga! The ancient practice of yoga may help.

“The mechanism of action is similar to other exercise techniques that activate the release of ‘feel good’ brain chemicals (endorphins),” says Dr. Alan Manevitz, a clinical psychiatrist at Lenox Hill Hospital in New York City. Exercise, especially yoga, he adds, “may also reduce immune system chemicals that influence depression,” and yoga’s meditative effects “and ‘mindful’ movement… can have a beneficial impact on the central nervous system.”

The problem: Isolation. Winter weather can be very cold, itself a deterrent to going out, and snow and ice make for treacherous streets and sidewalks. Not wanting to risk a fall, folks tend to stay home (understandably) in wintry weather, often alone, and sometime for hours or even days.

The fix: Stay connected! Schedule regular telephone calls with friends or family members, or take advantage of Skype and Whether it’s an exercise or art class, chair yoga, listening to a TED Talk or visiting the Computer Lab, trying out a new activity is good for the spirit – and the brain!

Janssen - Caregivers
Fox & Roach Charities - Partners in Caring
Dorothea van Dyke McLane Association - General Operating Support

Thank you to our Grantors!

There are other requests pending, which we hope will be added in coming months, and we are always seeking new sources of support to continue PSRC’s critical programs and services into the future.

We also extend heartfelt thanks to the PTO’s of Littlebrook, Riverside, and Johnson Park Elementary Schools for their support of the GrandPals programs within their schools. We also appreciate the continued support of the Princeton Methodist Church, the University Chapel and Community Without Walls.

Special thanks to everyone who contributed to PSRC in recent months - by participating on #GivingTuesday, or through AmazonSmile, and in response to our annual Winter Appeal. Your gifts not only let us know you value the critical services and life-enriching programs PSRC brings to families in the greater Princeton area, they also ensure we can continue to be a reliable and evolving presence in our community.
